

Surface Encounters of Wixom Granite Countertops – Quality Control and Intensive Training Programs

Advanced technology ensures accuracy; the automated process eliminates error

Detroit, MI – Surface Encounters advanced manufacturing process distinguishes this company from other countertop fabricators and installers. Their use of advanced technology ensures accuracy in measuring and cutting; the automated process eliminates human error to ensure design integrity.

According to Surface Encounters representatives, one of the most difficult parts of the process is selecting the material. With hundreds of different samples to choose from, picking out the material for a new countertop can be daunting. Surface Encounters friendly staff is there to make the selection process easier so customers are happy with their selection. They understand how the size and lighting of the showroom affects each piece and how to help customers make a wise choice for their needs.

Once the selection is made the customer's work is done and the real work begins for Surface Encounters technicians as they begin with laser measurement for accuracy. Automatic diamond saw computer controlled cutting ensures accuracy not previously possible. High pressure abrasive waterjet cutting allows for improved slab utilization for seam placement and artistic vein matching.

Surface Encounters advanced technology enables accurate sink cut-outs and cook top cut-outs, eliminating alignment issues for a better overall job. Using diamond milling tools, Surface Encounters creates beautiful edges, radiuses and arcs with precision unattainable to other companies. Using the most advanced diamond polishing tools Surface Encounters creates high luster to edge detail and shapes to add to the luxurious look of natural stone.

Surface Encounters invites you to visit a showroom to learn more about the process of fabricating quality stone countertops. For convenience, they are open 7 days a week. Visit <http://www.surface-encounters.com> for more information.
