

Surface Encounters in Macomb Showroom Tours – Step into the Stone-age see Technology at work

Granite Fabricators combine state-of-the-art manufacturing processes as they improve the world one surface at a time

Macomb – Surface Encounters in Macomb opens the showroom and proudly takes customers on a tour to show how they stay ahead of the competition. Store manager, Sal Dellacasa, explains the manufacturing process and how automated technology makes a difference in accuracy and precision with laser measuring alignment to program the diamond-tipped sculpting blades.

Surface Encounters' process is nothing short of amazing, beginning with the digital template used to measure the countertop. This technology eliminates human error while allowing the existing countertop to remain undisturbed until the new one is ready to install.

Sal conducts showroom tours every Thursday from 2pm to 4pm to explain to customers how the high-tech automated equipment provides quality results with a quick turn-around time to guarantee satisfaction and price assurance. "We have over one million dollars invested in the fabricating equipment," said Dellacasa, "Over 95% of granite and stone fabricators are using the technology. They have employees cutting and shaping the stone with routers and hand tools. A perfect cut and finish is impossible to attain with humans and hand tools no matter how experienced the technician is."

Surface Encounters in Macomb invites the public to visit the showroom and take a tour. Public tours are not limited to Thursday afternoons; the showroom is open 7 days a week and someone is always available to lead a tour. Step into the stone-age and see technology at work.
